honored by its observance, has become a pleasant feature in school life, as it has been discovered of late that life is short, and long, dry speeches are a delusion and a snare. Still, to deliver a short, interesting and spicy address to the scholars on opening day requires some tact and considerable talent, and without intending to be fulsome, we hold up the speakers who entertained the gathering at the college yesterday morning as bright and shining apostles of the new school of "advice" orators. Those who spoke were Rev. D. A. Cunningham, Rev. A.Hall, Rev. Samuel Steele, Rev. W. B. Thompson, Rev. T. B. Hughes, Rev. Sessler, U. S. Marshal G. W. Atkinson and Hon. C. D. Hubbard, President of the Board of Trustees. Their talks were pithy and interesting, covering the entire led of suggestion and advice without lapsing into a gloomy picture of the hardships of study, but rather encouraging the scholars to application by outlining the pleasures of an earnest pursuit of knowledge and the benefits to be derived from its possession.

Miss Taylor, the accomplished President of the institution, determined not to be cellipsed by the eloquent speakers who had precede her, fully sustained her reputation as an interesting talker by adding some timely amappropriate remarks, and at the same timely and dispelling the popular fallacy that womer cannot make as good speeches as men. Some changes have been made in the faculty, and a new branch of instruction added the school of ortatory, under the supervision.

A lively chase after a horse thief occurred here Wednesday. When Hugh Giffin reached the bottom of the hill below his house on his return home, after his morning trip with his milk wagon, he met a boy of twelve years riding a colt, which Mr. Giffin recognized as a very valuable three-year old of his own. The boy said that the man on top of the hill had sent him to town after tobacco. But before Mr. Giffin got to the house he feared all was not right, and shouted for his son John. As no one had seen the boy, John hastily unhitched a swift mare from the milk wagon, jumped on it and dashed down the run. At Sharp's he overtook the horse, but not the boy. The boy was hiding in the weeds, John scorred the horse and, with several others, hurried up the hill, where the thicf was supposed to have gone. The boy hid in a hollow log, where he had to stay so long on account of some boys accidently coming to aft on the log, that he was almost roasted. In the meantime an employe of Giffin's galloped barebeck into town and 'out the cemetery road, where he found the boy just coming out onto the road near the cemetery. The boy is now in the lockup, and proves to be a boy named Healls, who is known over town as "Bootblack." He says a man from Columbus, ADDITIONAL TELEGRAPH. HANLAN'S RETIREMENT.

Toronto, September 7.-A rumor having been current in acquatic circles that Han lan intended retiring from boat-racing al together, a press representative crossec erviewed the champion of the world.

"Is it true, Mr. Hanlan," asked the reporter, "that you intend accepting no more challenges, and are the rumors about you true?"

"They are true, every word, and I have pulled my last race," replied the coampion. "I have been studying over the matter, and have come to the conclusion that I will never give or accept another challenge, and never will pull another race. The fact of the matter is I can't attend to my hotel business and pull boat races. One or the other had to be sacrificed, and I have determined to sacrifice boat racing. I can go no higher, and have resolved to quit the business. Of course some people will call me a coward, but I don't think that my record shows that I have ever shown the white feather, at any rate I have pulled my last race."

"Oh, they can fight it out among them selves."

"Do you intend to pull in any race in to"morrow's regatta?"
"I do not, and shall take no part in it.
The fact of the matter is I am entirely out of condition and unfit to row. If entered o-morrow I should in all probability be beaten, and the people would say if I then retired I was afraid."
"Whose chance do you consider best in the regatta to-morrow?"

"Whose chance do you consider best in the regatta to-morrow?"
"I think Trickett has just as good a chance as any one clse. He is rowing in fine form and I should not be a bit surprised to see him come in first."

On the veranda of the hotel some of the oarsmen were talking together about the ruce, and from their conversation the reporter learned that both Charles Courtney and Trickett are astchishing the others by the work they are doing. This morning Ross and Courtney had a fine spurt together, the latter creeping up and passing the former. Hosmer, Teneyck and Riley were out—the latter with a wind-sail on the low of his hoat. At present Tricket, Gandaur and Courtney are the favorites, though Wallace Ross has plenty of backers. There are runners of a combination between certain oarsmen to pool the tween certain carsmen to pool the prizes, but the re,eree has just informed your reporter that if he sees anything of the sort he will hold an investigation, and if the matter be brought home he will re-fuse to award the prizes.

mong the cast snore, and saw a lady watching ing into the Lake.

She had her clothes on, and held ther hands above her head. Thinking her actions strange, he rowed out to her and asked what was the trouble. She replied, "I tried to drown myself." He attempted to get her into the boat, but failing, made her take hold of the rope, and towed her to the shore. Her identity was discovered on reaching shore. Being asked why she attempted such an act she replied:
"I wanted to drown myself and not cause my husband any more trouble. She had been an inmate of Mrs. Green's Water Cure in Castile for some time past, and was doubtless partially insane, which was the occasion of the strange freak. Mrs. Green took her back to the cure on Saturday. Senator Allison, who was telegraphed for, arrived at Castile on Monday evening. His wife's condition is reported somewhat improved. They will start for home on Wednesday or Thursday. The Cramer Murder Trial.

that she last saw her daughter alive on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, August 4. She was with Miss Douglass. Asked her She was with Miss Douglass, Asked her why she did not come home the night before and Jennie said they, meaning Malley boys and Douglass, would not let her. Mrs. Cramer went down stairs; when she came back both had gone. That afternoop Mrs. Cramer went to Malley is to look for Jennie. James Malley said he supposed she was at home. Mrs. Cramer told him that she did not like the looks of Douglass, and feared she would entice Jennie to New York. James said he did not believe so, for Douglass was a lady. Witness identified several letters from James to Jennie, similar in purport to those already introduced. Some Typical Boasting From Cincinnati.

Why would it not be a good idea to adopt the plan of the Wellsville water work to get our water out of the river? We have heard that system highly recommended by people who have lived in Wellsville. It is simple and could be adopted with little expense of money or time.

While we are talking about a fair ground of our own, we must remember that it will take time to establish it as one of the permanent institutions of the neighborhood. St. Clairsville's fair has its regular attendams who take their children and grandehildren to show them where they went when they were young.
